Executive Head

I am privileged to be part of UCSA since 2010. Life transforming youth experiences is something that are close to heart, and with my four children, also close to home.

UCSA has changed shape many times in the past. From being ACSV, VCS and CSV to UCSA. These name changes was the result of changes in the South African society, international developments, local entities, partners and influences.

Each season, God mobilised the right people to make the difference for that specific place the organisation would be at. The time for change is here again. This time the name will stay the same, but the objectives and focus will change. I am aware of a radical intervention from God in this season.

My dream for UCSA is to take up the baton, to stand in the gap, to deliver on what God has called us for. To be creative, to be relevant, to be relational and to be obedient to Christ

What we do

UCSA's aims

In dependence on God, the organisation strives to:

- live as disciples of Jesus and to witness to others;
- be sensitive to the Holy Spirit within our context;
- encourage members to spend time studying the Bible, to pray and to become involved in a local church;
- promote inter-denominational relationships;
- maintain a Christian presence in educational institutions in South-Africa;
- promote reconciliation and unity amongst Christian learners and students;
- promote leadership that serves and that will motivate and mobilise its members to also serve; and
- create an atmosphere for a teachable spirit.

Commitment to UCSA

It is expected of all members of staff, council and committee members to endorse the aims of UCSA.

Relationship with schools and tertiary institutions

- As an organisation of learners and students UCSA, at all times, strives to maintain good relationships with education authorities at all levels of management.
- UCSA branches are established in consultation with school principals or the governing bodies of educational institutions.
- UCSA branch activities are internally supervised in accordance with the mandate given by the principal and/or governing body of an educational institution, and in cooperation with the responsible teacher / UCSA representative.

Relationship with the church

- UCSA cannot – and does not want to – substitute the church. We strive to create opportunities for young people to grow in their relationship with Jesus in a voluntarily and unrestricted way.
- UCSA acknowledges the supervision of the church over its members.
- UCSA wishes to serve and support the church in its striving to call its members to choices of faith in Jesus Christ.
- UCSA regards it the task of each church denomination to teach its members its specific dogma.
- In its programmes, study material and in the way in which it presents its activities, UCSA undertakes to steer clear of matters that may relate to religious dogma and possible differences of opinion among church denominations.
- UCSA appeals to churches to undertake not to use UCSA activities to recruit members for their congregations.
- UCSA encourages unity. We urge all involved to show sensitivity towards possible differences in religious orientation.
